Daverne

The first of this name in Can was A Q M G of Midland Dist. during & after War of 1812. In 1816, the summerless year he had charge of hay & grain of the Army. When there was a clamoring for seed to plant the following year, he came under great pressure. He wrote to H. O. England for permission to distribute it. but, as he would not have a reply in less than 3 or 4 months, he took it on himself to farm it out to needy planters without having received permission. Then, when the authorities began to raise hell against him, he foolishly escaped to U.S. to escape firing squad or imprisonment. Another officer got his position. At a later date he returned & had a long fight to be exonerated. This was successful after several years, but 800 acres granted to him in the Perth area was never returned to him.

He, or his brother, bought land in Adolphustown in 1815, which is still in the hands of his descendants.

Daniel Daverne died without will in Adolphustown, and letters of Administration was granted to his next of kin, Richard Daverne the Younger 19 March 1830.
